THE ARBUTUS TREE OF CALIFORNIA.

In the aforetime, when the sea was young,
But yet the moon already waxen old,
Nymph, god and satyr wandered through the wold,
And Memnon's stony Lips at sunrise rung.

Æons have passed like hours since sirens sung,
Since Jove wooed Danae in a shower of gold,
But Buddha, lord of Earth and Time, was old,
When Jove and Juno, Time and Earth were young.

A mystery broodeth over the forest dim,
Where solemn redwood, laurel green and bay
All bow obeisance to great Buddha's throne.
Ghosts of dead gods whisper a phantom hymn;
Trees, birds and humans, awed and cowering pray:
Moved by the night breeze, moaneth the madrone.

—Jerome A. Hart in San Francisco Argonaut.

Wonders of Engraving.

It is now known that precious and semiprecious stones were engraved with all the delicacy of modern filagree work as long ago as the time of Horace, centuries before emery powder, wheel and lathe were known. In more modern times, and with the tools and appliances which civilization naturally places in the artisan's hands, engravers have performed wonders, even going to the extent of carving relief pictures on the hardest of all mineral substances, the diamond. The first artist to engrave a diamond was Jacomo da Trezzo in 1567. The earliest instance of any kind of an engraved gem is the emerald signet ring of Polycrates, 740 B. C. In the time of Francis I, Matteo del Nassaro, an Austrian citizen of Italian parentage, cut his famous "Crucifixion" upon a bloodstone, the lines conforming with the red spots and specks in such a manner as to make it appear that they were drops of blood issuing from the mortal wounds of the Saviour of the human race.—St. Louis Republic.

An Anecdote of Pope.

Mr. Jesse narrates an anecdote of Alexander Pope concerning one of the old watermen who was employed for many years in rowing Pope on the Thames. Pope was in the habit of having his sedan chair lifted into the punt. If the weather was fine he let down the glasses; if cold he pulled them up. He would sometimes say to the waterman:

"John, I am going to repeat some verses; take care and remember them the next time I go out."

When that time came Pope would say:

"John, where are the verses I told you of?"

"I have forgotten them, sir."

"John, you are a blockhead. I must write them down for you."

John says that no one thought of saying, when speaking of him, "Mr. Pope," but that he was always called "Mr. Alexander."

Do Women Like to Be Bossed?

Speaking of the "Taming of the Shrew," a woman whom one would scarcely imagine cherished such sentiments remarked: "All women love masterful men, and though I do not approve of the whiplash method of Petruchio's wooing, still even that is preferable to the pleading, humble style of lovemaking some men assume, for it is only assumption after all, not their genuine feelings. I like, and I know most women feel the same, a man that above all else they can respect and are just a tiny bit afraid of. Just as soon as a woman gets the upper hand she loses half the delight of being ordered around by one whom she would ten times rather serve as slave than rule as master."—Philadelphia Times.

A Libel on the Ivy.

The Japanese ivy has been charged with many serious things, such as injuring the stone and brickwork of buildings upon which it grows, and affording a safe harbor for mice. And now comes another. The offending plant covered the walls of a stable and forced an entrance by the window. There one of the horses, in his eagerness for green food, nibbled freely of the leaves within his reach, immediately fell ill, and died soon after from their poisonous effect, as an examination indicated. All of which is doubtless a libel on this lovely creeper.—New York Tribune.

The Rose in Britain.

The first cultivated rose is said to have been planted in Britain A. D. 1522. The damask rose was brought from France in 1573, the moss rose about 1724, and the China rose some fifty years after. Wild roses are, however, natives of all parts of Britain. In Withering's "British Botany" only five distinct species are said to be indigenous, but in Hooker's and Arnott's "British Flora" nineteen species are mentioned, and some writers on botany raise the number as high as twenty-four.—Detroit Free Press.

How the Romans Ate.

The Romans took their meals lying upon very low couches, and it was not until about the time of Charlemagne that a stand was used, around which guests were seated on cushions, while the table made its appearance in the Middle Ages, and with it came benches with backs.

ELEMENT OF CHANCE IN GAMES.

Great Players Often Owe Their Most Brilliant Efforts to a Chance Play.

We should like to know how good a player a man must be before he can truly say that he never owes a victory or a defeat at chess to good or ill luck. Chess, as played by beginners, is far more often decided by chance than not. As played even by fairly good players, it is not always a game which is entirely controlled by their contending skill. A more than average player must often confess to himself that the result of a move was purely accidental, and that the very step which he regretted, the moment that it became irrevocable, was the step which ultimately opened the way to success. No doubt among such chess players as Messrs. Blackburne, Steinitz and others this element of chance is reduced to the minimum; but even in their game it must still exist to a certain extent.

A player who is said to play a brilliant game must often appeal to blind fortune in making some of the moves which earn him the title, for from all accounts there are among even the best chess players two different classes—the brilliant player and the machinelike player; that is to say, the player who sometimes goes astray from his rule and theory and the player who never deviates from them, and what advantage can the former ever hope to gain over the latter except it be with the aid of chance?

Even more strictly scientific than chess is the game of draughts. Between skillful players of draughts it seems impossible for there to be any room for the intervention of fortune. But then draughts, with all due deference to its players, is not a very amusing game, and they who seek amusement will probably reverse the board, and with the cheerful rattle of dice embark upon the chances of backgammon. Even in games of manual skill it is the lurking element of chance which adds to them no unimportant attraction.

The "glorious uncertainty of cricket" is not an empty phrase; were it not for that uncertainty a cricket match would lose much of its interest not only for the spectators, but for the players too. And in cricket, tennis and in other games, as in chess, there is also the distinction between the brilliant and the cautious player, the player who hazards the most and the player who hazards the least; the one who sometimes is willing to depend on chance, and the one who is not. Now there is no doubt which of these two the world most admires and would most willingly emulate.

Curiously enough, the same world that welcomes the element of chance in games of science and skill is always anxious to introduce some element of science into its diversions with pure chance. When it actually plays with fortune as an antagonist, it gets its keenest enjoyment from its efforts to load the dice. We do not suppose that the gambler exists who does not secretly cherish the fond idea that he can cheat fortune. If betting upon horse races were a matter of absolute uncertainty, the bookmaker's occupation would be gone, and the interest that we now display in betting—we mean to say in the improvement of our breed of horses—would speedily diminish. In this case we try to cheat fortune with the science of superior information, and it must be confessed that the amusement allows a large margin for the operation of that science, and that the person who possesses it wins.

The turf is a board upon which the game of pure chance is only played by fools.—London Spectator.

The Silk Spinning Oyster.

A mollusk that might take an important place in textile industries if it existed in sufficient numbers is found in warm seas, especially on the coast of Sicily. It is the pinna, a genus of wing shelled bivalves, of which one species attains a length of two feet. To attach itself to the rocks it spins a cable of strong filaments, called collectively the byssus. These threads are wonderfully strong, silken in texture and have been woven into various delicate fabrics. A pair of gloves from this material may be seen in the British museum, and fine mummy cloths, made from it by the ancients, are still preserved.—New Orleans Picayune.

Games and Idioms.

From cards are derived such familiar sayings as "A card up his sleeve" (a clever if not a very commendable action), "a tramp card," "to play your cards well," etc. From billiards we borrow "a fine stroke;" from cricket, "a good innings," and from football, "he has the ball at his feet." Many others will suggest themselves to the reader, the foregoing being just jotted down as they occur to the mind of the writer, by way of examples.—Gentleman's Magazine.

Information Wanted.

He who wears a small hat in these days runs risks of rude comments. For instance, a young man thus equipped as to headgear was hailed yesterday by an acquaintance. "What are you going around with a pimple on your head for?" demanded the outspoken critic.—New York Times.

The First Steamboat.

The first steamboat ever built in the United States was partly constructed in Frederick county in the year 1785. The vessel was built by James Rumsey, of Shepherdstown, W. Va. Robert Fulton and his Clermont were anticipated by Rumsey twenty-two years. The steamboat was fitted up with machinery partly manufactured at the Catoctin furnace of the Johnson Brothers, near Frederick. The boiler, two cylinders, pump, pipes, etc., were manufactured in Baltimore. Some portions of the works were made at the Antietam Iron works. On March 14, 1786, a public experiment, the first ever undertaken in America, was made on the Potomac river.

Rumsey succeeded in attaining a speed of four miles an hour against the current. The steamboat was eighty feet long. It was propelled by a steam engine, which worked a vertical pump in the middle of the vessel, by which the water was drawn in at the bow and discharged through a horizontal trunk at the stern. The boat bore a load of three tons. The weight of its machinery was 666 pounds. The whole of the machinery, including the boiler, occupied a space but little over four feet square.

Two distinguished men were patrons to Rumsey's experiment—George Washington and Governor Thomas Johnson, of Maryland. The experiment was made in the interest of the proposed Chesapeake and Ohio canal. Rumsey clearly and satisfactorily demonstrated that a boat could be propelled up stream against the current. Thus we find that the first steamboat was propelled on the Potomac and a portion of the first machinery made in Frederick county nearly 110 years ago.—Frederick (Md.) News.

A Jonah Among Locomotives.

"There are on nearly every railroad locomotives that are known as Jonahs," said Henry E. Archer, who has spent twenty years in the service of the Illinois Central. "Locomotive engineers are not perhaps more superstitious than other people, but I have known more than one to throw up his position rather than take out an engine that was regarded as unlucky. Some years ago an engine on an Illinois road blew up, cutting the fireman's head off with a segment of boiler iron. The engine was rebuilt and made as good as new, but no engineer could be found to run it more than one trip. It was soon whispered about that it was haunted; that the headless fireman had an unpleasant habit of appearing on the tender with pick and shovel and insisting on firing up.

"One night an engineer and his fireman deserted the locomotive while out on a run, and the conductor attempted to bring the train in. He was not afraid of ghosts, not he! But he side tracked at the first opportunity and waited until daylight before completing the run. He told me that the ghost was no joke; that every time the furnace door was thrown open the headless apparition entered the cab, bearing a shadowy scoop of coal. For a month the engine laid in the shop. Then an engineer, who was compelled to either take it out or lose his position, mounted it. Before he had run a dozen miles it went through a culvert, wrecked the train and killed nine people. It was never rebuilt."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Delhi and Its History.

Shah Jehan in 1631 built the present city of Delhi, close to the old Delhi, and made it the royal residence. The Mohammedans still call it Shahjehanabad, the "City of the King of the World." Nadir Shah, the Persian usurper, captured it in 1739, massacred thousands of the inhabitants, and bore away plunder to the value of nearly $100,000,000, including the famous peacock throne and the great Koh-i-noor diamond, now in the possession of the British crown.

The British first came into control in 1803, when the Mahrattas were defeated near Delhi by Lord Lake. When the Sepoy mutiny broke out in 1857 Shah Mohammed Bahadour, then ninety years old, took command of the city, and until the English again triumphed enjoyed the imperial state to which he had long been a stranger.—Chicago Tribune.

An Important Dental Invention.

The most important invention in the line of dentistry is a machine by which steel excavating burs are made. Hitherto these delicate little instruments have had to be manufactured by hand. You can only perceive how very delicate they are by examining them under a powerful magnifying glass. To make them by hand was a very laborious process, and not less than $600,000 was spent in experiments before the machine for producing them was successfully constructed. It turns them out with such rapidity that they only cost nineteen cents apiece now.—Interview in Washington Star.

Quite Possible.

Billings, Jr., Pa. if an animal breaks his back does he get humpbacked like a human being?

Billings, Sr. Yes, my son; but what makes you ask such a question?

Billings, Jr.—I was just wondering if the hump on the camel was caused by the last straw.—New York Truth.

The Ownership of Fishing Streams.

The owner of a North Carolina mountain farm, through which flows a stream, stocked the waters at considerable expense with a species of trout not indigenous to the region. The fish did well, and though the stream was duly posted the proprietor's neighbors helped themselves and defied his prohibitions. The trespass laws proving ineffectual, the common law was invoked, the trout catchers charged with larceny, convicted and punished.

The common law gives the owner of land and water the exclusive right to take the game or fish found thereon. It is this exclusive right to take them that constitutes his so called "property" in them. Further, the common law principle is that whenever any one else, without permission, invades this right, and captures the fish or game the fish or game so soon as it is reduced to possession becomes the property of the landowner, and taking away the fish or game constitutes larceny.

Common law is one thing; common custom quite another. As a rule, in this country, game and fish are looked upon as belonging to the person who takes them—not to him on whose land or in whose waters they are taken, except in those instances where an individual or association protects game and fish for the purpose of sport. It is probable that in the future, as game preserves shall multiply, and as private enterprise, like that of the North Carolina case we have cited, shall introduce new species, and thus acquire an equitable claim to a certain ownership in them, we shall hear more of this phase of the common law.—Forest and Stream.

A Glass and Wire Compound.

The manufacture of a new compound of glass and wire, which is found to possess a remarkable resisting power in sudden changes of temperature, bids fair to become an important industry, according to the accounts which have appeared in the Dresden (Germany) papers. The process of production consists of furnishing glass, while in a hot plastic condition, with a flexible metallic layer, like wire netting, the metal becoming completely imbedded in the glass, and in this way being effectively protected from rust. As a proof of the toughness of such a compound, it is stated that the glass may be sprinkled with cold water while it is in a highly heated state without the surface being materially damaged, and the article is therefore considered to be particularly adapted for skylights, the powerful resisting qualities of the substance rendering the use of the ordinary wire protectors unnecessary. It has also been successfully employed for hollow glassware, and in especial is suitable for making glass vessels which have to stand a high pressure or are subject to hard usage, and as the glass cannot be broken without causing unusual noise, and is not readily cut with a diamond, it is claimed that the material is in a measure burglar proof.—New York Sun.

The Money Question in the Home.

A man should see that his women folks are given an allowance. Let the daughter receive hers, the wife hers and the mother hers. Let each be told how long it is expected to last, and leave the spending of it to themselves and to their own good judgment. Many a woman, galled by a dependence that causes her to run to the head of the house for every cent she spends, rather than submit to the humiliation does work by means of which she may supply her own wants without question or comment.

It is carelessness on the part of most men that makes them forget the needs of their families, for as a rule men are not selfish, but it makes it no less unpleasant for the wife who must needs state her wants before the faulty memory has been jogged. Men are so accustomed to carrying money and having it always about them for all of their own needs that it never enters their heads to question how it would feel to be obliged to ask some one for the means of obtaining a new hat, a box of cigars or a fall overcoat.—Philadelphia Times.

A Caustic Criticism.

Social conventions are the result of the opinions of people living a long time ago who succeeded in persuading other people that their views were sound and their practices sensible. It does not follow that a man was a fool because he lived a long time ago. If Mr. Bjornson and Dr. Ibsen and the rest could grasp the truth of this simple proposition it would do them, as the poet said, "an infernal deal of good." And if they would write stories without trying to teach anything in particular and would essay the not impossible task of making them interesting without making them indecent, their stories would be much better worth reading.—London Saturday Review.

A Miniature Fire Hose.

A Kentucky man has a water spaniel that he has taught to extinguish fire whenever it sees anything burning. To test the little dog a piece of paper was ignited and dropped on the floor. In an instant the dog jumped upon it and very quickly extinguished the flame by rubbing it between his paws. The dog was tried with a lighted cigar with the same result.—New York Tribune.

TOWNS ARE MADE.

Now that an effort is being made to establish Chemical Works in Sonoma which will give employment to a large number of people, the following from an exchange may prove as a reminder to our people that a town will not grow and thrive without an effort on the part of its people. In other words, Chemical Works or any other enterprises calculated to advance the business interests of the town are not going to start themselves:

"Many have an idea that towns grow because a necessity of them exists. They think that it makes no difference what efforts the people make, no odds what steps are taken to advance a town, no matter what sort of people dwell in a town, the place will grow if its natural advantages are sufficiently attractive and men can make something by living there. The fact is, most towns are made, they do not grow. They are built up through the energetic efforts of the people who desire to see a town pushed on. Take fifty small towns and two or three of these in time become large and important places, while the others move along in the same old rut. The town that goes ahead is driven onward by its citizens. The men of the town see that a line of road will benefit them and the road is built; they mark that a bridge is needed to draw trade and the bridge is constructed. They observe that a flour mill, or a cannery, or a woolen mill has proved a drawing card in some other town, and they subscribe money to have one of their own. A newspaper is a necessity and the money is raised to start the paper. A church or a school house is needed, or will draw more people, and the building is soon erected. In this manner the town is constantly being forced onward. The editor desires to get up a fine edition of his paper, showing the most enterprising men, and these men put their hands into their pockets and pay for the work.

Look the State over, this portion at least and see, if you had a few thousands, where you would place it. Would it be in towns where no money is spent in advertising, in pushing, building up and driving forward? No indeed, you would go to the locality where the business men are wide awake, alert, full of drive and push and energy. So we say a town is made, it does not grow of its own accord, but it is built up by the well directed efforts of its leading citizens.

STEPHEN M. WHITE was elected United States Senator last Wednesday on the second ballot. The selection was the best the Democrats could have made. He is a man of fine oratorical powers and a representative citizen of California in every sense of the word.

Two young girls, scarcely sixteen, have been charged at Ottakring, Japan, with cruelty to animals. To gain the affection of their sweethearts they cut out the eyes of two twelve-week-old kittens. Burning the eyes to a powder they put them in wine, which their sweethearts drank. The prescription has been regarded as infallible since 1706.

To preserve a youthful appearance as long as possible, it is indispensable that the hair should retain its natural color and fullness. There is no preparation so effective as Ayer's Hair Vigor. It prevents baldness, and keeps the scalp clean, cool and healthy.

A Little Girl's Experience in a Light house.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Trescott are keepers of the Gay Lighthouse at Sand Beach, Mich. and are blessed with a daughter, four years old. Last April she was taken down with Measles, followed with a dreadful Cough and turning into a fever. Doctors at home and at Detroit treated her, but in vain, she grew worse rapidly, until she was a mere "handful of bones." Then she tried Dr. King's New Discovery and after the use of two and a half bottles, was completely curpd. They say Dr. King's New Discovery is worth its weight in gold, yet you may get a trial bottle free at Ed. Wegner's Drugstore.

An Enemy Baffled.

There is an enemy with whom thousands are familiar all their lives, because they are born with a tendency to biliousness, with this enemy they are costantly battling with ineffectual weapons. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will baffle it. Mere purgatives will not reform a disordered condition of the liver indicated, not by constipation alone, but also by sick headache, yellowness of the skin and eye balls, nausea, furred tongue and uneasiness, more particularly upon pressure on the right side, upon and below the short ribs. Avoid drastic purgatives which gripe and weaken the intestines, and substitute this world-famous anti-bilious cordial, which likewise removes malarial, stomachic and kidney complaints rheumatism and nervousness. As a laxitive of the bowles, painless but effectual, it impoves appetite, sleep and the ability to digest, and possesses the adeitional advantage of a standard tonic.

Good Looks.

Good looks are more than skin deep, depending upon a healthy condition of the vital organs. If the Liver be inactive, you have a Bilious Look, if your stomach be disordered you have a Dyspeptic Look and if your Kidneys be affected you have a Pinched Look. Secure good health and you will have good looks. Electric Bitters is the great alterative and Tonic and acts directly on these vital organs. Cures pimples, Blotches, Boils and gives a good complexion sold at Ed. Wegner's Drug Store. 50c per bottle.

Also, because the yellow dock, being raised expressly for the Company, is always fresh and of the very best kind. With equal discrimination and care, each of the other ingredients are selected and compounded. It is

Mrs. Senator Hearst has commenced suit in San Francisco against Thos. L. Thompson of Santa Rosa to recover the sum of $500 and interest due on a promissory note executed by the latter to the late Senator Hearst.

John Madden, an employee in Schocken's basalt block quarries, had his right eye badly injured last Tuesday by a sharp piece of rock. It was a miracle that the eyesight was not destroyed as the rock barely missed the pupil of the eye.

Miss Rena Shattuck, a grand daughter of the late Judge D. O. Shattuck, has written and had published a charming home story entitled "Little Buttons." The work, which should be in every Sonoma Valley library, is on sale at Duhring's store.

The Methodist Episcopal Church building will be removed next week from its present site in the eastern suburbs of town to the site on First-street East donated by Jas. McMackin. Rev. Mr. Mohn, the pastor, will hold services tomorrow and until farther notice in the College building.

Following is the programme rendered by the Adelphic Literary Society at the High School yesterday Instrumental solo, Annie Wadsworth; song. society; solo, Bertha Campbell; reading, John Burke; song, society; reading, Florence Thompson. Debate, resolved "That Foreign Immigration be Restricted." Affirmative, Lizzie Harper and Pauline Bates. Negative, Charles Champlin and Stella Johnson. Song, society.

Col. G. F. Hooper of Sobre-Vista is probably doing more to test the capabilities of the soil and climate of Sonoma Valley than any other one man. He has already spent a small fortune in propagating and cultivating oranges, lemons, pecan nuts, English walnuts, Japanese persimmons, olives, citron and other tropical and semi-tropical fruits. An inspection of his farm with its groves of olives, orange, lemon and nut-bearing trees will convince the most skeptical that almost anything grown under the sun can be profitably cultivated in this valley with proper care and attention.

The Columbia Athletic Club was organized in this place last Thursday evening with W. T. Baker as President and Bernard Baer, Secretary, and a membership of thirty-four, among whom are many prominent business men. The object of the club is to promote physical culture. The club will be conducted on the same principle as the leading athletic clubs of San Francisco. There will be a business meeting of the club next Monday evening to adopt a constitution, by-laws and rules of order. It is the intention of the members to give a series of boxing matches and sword exercises interspersed with other athletic attractions for the amusement of the club.

SALE OF WINE.

Advance in Prices—Eighteen Cents for Red and Twenty for White.

Two important wine sales have recently taken place in this valley. J. Chauvet of Glen Ellen has sold his entire cellar, comprising thousands of gallons of red and white wines, to San Francisco dealers. The figure received by Mr. Chauvet was a fair one and the sale will net him a handsome profit.

Martin Peter has also sold all his red wine, vintage 1891. The price paid was 18 cents, which is almost double the offer he received and refused last season. Although Mr. Peter has been offered 20 cents for his white wines he is holding on for a higher figure and he will get it, too. The white dry wines of Sonoma Valley are retailed in San Francisco in bottles which go five to a gallon for from 25 cents to 50 cents per bottle, or $1.25@ $2.50 per gallon. Now, for this same wine the dealers offer the grower only 20 cents per gallon. An enormous profit must be made on these wines by somebody at the above figures.

SOLD.

The Donahue Railway Secured by the Seligmans.

The Donahue road was sold on Friday of last week to the Seligmans of New York for $420,000.

The executors of the estate have accepted this bid, but it is subject to the confirmation by the court.

On February 24th the Court will consider this matter, and on that day, if any higher bid is received, it will be considered by the Judge.

But as far as the executors of the Donahue estate are concerned, the road is sold to the New York bankers who hold a large block of the stock.

Before the return of the bid by the executors, a bid was filed in court the same day by William Graves, present General Manager of the N. P. C. R. R., for $450,000, for the same property. No action was taken on this bid, on the grounds that the Seligman bid was filed the day before and accepted before the filing of Mr. Graves' bid, but which will leave Mr. Graves' bid to the discretion of the court at the confirmation for acceptance.

Perjury Charge Dismissed.

The charge of perjury against George Foutts has been dismissed by Judge Dougherty on the grounds of insufficiency of evidence to convict. The accused has had one trial on the charge and the jury failed to agree on a verdict and for the District Attorney to insist on another trial would simply be a waste of public money, as a conviction could never be secured. Foutts is already in the meshes of the law and is serving out a five-year sentence in the State Prison for arson. The perjury charge was the outcome of the arson cases tried by District Attorney Burnett several months ago in which Foutts exhibited a woeful lack of memory and to all questions put to him on the witness stand came the same answer, "I don't remember." It was for this that it was sought to convict him of perjury.

The Losee Place Sold.

Dr. N. G. W. Greenberg has purchased the Losee farm from the executor, John Cooper, for $5100. The doctor, who is engaged in the drug business in San Francisco, will make many improvements on his purchase, among which will be the planting of a new orchard. The sale was made through the real estate agency of D. H. Twing of this place.

Fined One Hundred Dollars.

Ah Wing, who beat a fellow celestial so unmercifully at the Mecartney ranch, near Los Guilicos, a couple of weeks ago, and who was subsequently committed by Justice Cheney for an assualt with a deadly weapon, was allowed to plead guilty to a simple assault in the Superior Court, Santa Rosa, Monday, and was fined $100 by Judge Crawford.

Appropriation Asked.

Hon. J. C. Sims has introduced a bill in the Assembly to provide a new wing for the Home of the Feeble-Minded $119,450, for furniture $6,000, and for improvement of grounds of said institution, $15-, 000; amounting in all to $140,450.

Captain Boyes has been appointed the agent of the large English real estate firm of Scott & Jackson in London. All parties wishing to sell should call and see him. He will put their places at once on the English market, where they will have the best and strictest attention. If you desire to secure a purchaser do not ask a fancy price, especially for unimproved lands. Mr. Boyes will have many parties out to see places from January 1st on. *

A SONOMA HORSE TO THE FRONT.

Marigold Breaks the California Record and Wins $5000.

Marigold, the property of J. B. Chase, whose racing stables are located in this place, on Saturday last, at the Bay Distract race track, San Francisco, broke the California four-mile running record in 7:20¼, winning a purse of $5000 for her owner. The mare was ridden by Johnny Webber, under direction of Matt Storn, who has charge of Chases' stable of racers.

The Cooper Divorce Case.

This case, which engaged the attention of Judge Crawford last week and a portion of the present week, is now in the hands of the Judge. On Wednesday Judge Barham made his closing argument for Mr. Cooper and A. B. Ware closed for Mrs. Cooper. It is not known when Judge Crawford will render his decision. It may be in two or three days or as many weeks or months. The parties to the suit, both of whom are confident of winning, have returned to their respective homes and are anxiously awaiting the decision of Judge Crawford.

A Runaway Wife.

Wm. Piggott of Healdsburg was here Thursday and made a number of inquiries in regard to the whereabouts of his wife, who mysteriously disappeared a few days ago. Mr. Piggott runs a barber shop in Healdsburg and occasionally preaches. He is about 32 years old and his wife is not over 25. They have two children, both bright little girls, one two and the other one year old.

Mrs. Piggott left her Healdsburg home Tuesday evening, since which time she has not been seen by anybody here. Her husband learned that she had come to Santa Rosa with another man; had remained here over night and left next morning with him for Suisun. He will institute divorce proceedings shortly as he has reasons to suspect that she has been rather too intimate with the young man for some time.

It is said that since her disappearance he has learned that she has been unduly intimate with him for the past month. The young man's name in Bounds, and he has been working for T. S. Merchant of Healdsburg for some time.

Bounds left Healdsburg December 29th, and told Piggott he was going to Arizona, but it seems that he did not go that far. Mr. Piggott has the sympathy of his many friends in his trouble. It is certain that a divorce suit will soon follow.—Republican.

Death of an Old Resident.

Chas. W. Lubeck, a resident of Shellville, died suddenly of apoplexy at his home, Locust Grove, last Saturday night. Mr. Lubeck was a resident of this valley for the past forty-two years. He was a native of Sweden, where he was born in 1814. His early years were spent in his native country. In 1849 he came to California where he engaged in mercantile pursuits. The funeral of deceased took place last Monday and was largely attended. The interment was in Mountain Cemetery.

"Little Buttons."

This dainty little volume from the pen of our highly esteemed friend, who for so long wrote under the nom de plume of Polly Larkin, is having a big run.

It surely deserves it, for seldom has there been written a volume which so nearly approaches the lovable and natural characteritcs of child life as they really exist; none but a perfectly sympathetic nature could have compiled such a treasure.

And "children of an older growth" will find in this little literary gem, food for pleasant thought.

It is for sale at Duhring's store. Price 50 cents. Don't fail to get one.

Public School.

The public school reopened last Monday after a vacation of eight weeks, with thirty-two students in the primary department, forty in the intermediate, thirty-two in the grammar department and fifteen in the High School.

"The Old Checkered Shawl."

This is the name of one of the latest and best songs. The words and music are by L. B. Mitchell. It tells a good joke in a capital style. The publishers S. W. Straub & Co, 245 State St., Chicago, will mail a copy to any address upon receipt of 30c.

REMINGTON.

Glen Ellen, Jan. 19, 1893.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

FRIDAY, January 13th.

The Board met at 9 o'clock A. M., all members present, Chairman Mead presiding.

Mr. Hall moved that the Chair appoint a committee of two on amendments to the last road law, it appearing that said law was defective and would be amended by the present legislature. Supervisors Hall and Joost were appointed on that committee.

District Attorney Seawell being at present very busy with local duties connected with his office, on motion of Mr. Thompson, A. G. Burnett was employed as counsel to assist the District Attorney in the case of the People vs. C. H. Worth et al., now pending before the Supreme Court. While Mr. Burnett was District Attorney he conducted the case successfully before the Superior Court and he is to receive $200 for his services, the Supreme Court affirming the decision of the lower Court.

It appearing to the Board that the present boiler attached to the heating apparatus in the Courthouse is entirely inadequate, on motion of Supervisor Joost Mr. Mead was appointed a committee of one to purchase and have put in position a new boiler.

The motion of Supervisor Sales to accept the reports of J. F. Mulgrew, M. M. Speegle and a number of Justices of the Peace and Road Masters, then prevailed.

The resignation of B. K. Walker pound master of Tzabaca pound district, and of E. A. Howe, of Fulton district, were accepted.

The data necessary to be used in carrying into effect the provisions of the new road law not having arrived, on motion of Mr. Sales, advertising for contracts for keeping the county roads in repair was postponed for the present,

Several communications were received by the Board from the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce and others, asking for some expression of opinion in regard to the Nicaragua canal and to send memorial to Congress.

Mr. Sales therefore framed two resolutions which were adopted by the Board, declaring that they favored the construction of the canal, which should be under the control of the United States government, and requesting the representatives in Congress from this district and the United States Senators from this State to use every honorable effort to secure the passage of legislation favoring the canal scheme.

The afternoon session was employed in drawing the list of grand and trial jurors.

At 5 o'clock P. M. the Board adjourned to meet next morning at the usual time.

SATURDAY, January 14th.

The board met at 9 o'clock A. M., all members present, Chairman Mead presiding.

Supervisor Joost moved that the District Attorney be and is hereby authorized to appoint an assistant District Attorney at a compensation of $100 per month, payable in the same manner and at the same time as the salary of the District Attorney. Motion carried and so ordered.

The motion of Mr. Hall prevailing, $6,257.74 was ordered transferred from the general fund to the swamp and overflowed land fund, and $1,600 was transferred from the indigent fund to to the general fund.

The following was made the order of the board: "I move that F. G. Nagel be and is hereby employed on behalf of Sonoma county to collect and cause to be collected, or cause to be redeemed or cause the payment of all moneys necessary to be paid to redeem all property sold to the State of California, for taxes, from 1870 down to and including the forty-second fiscal year, and to take all steps that may be necessary to accomplish the redemption of said property and the payment of said taxes.

"That the said F. G. Nagle shall be allowed and paid as his compensation fifteen per cent on all moneys collected and paid to the County Treasurer of Sonoma county on account of such taxes.

"And that a contract similar to the contract between the said F. G. Nagle, E. P. Colgan, State Controller and W. H. H. Hart, Attorney-General of the State of California, dated October 8th, 1892, in reference to the collection of the State portion of said taxes, be drawn up by said F. G. Nagle, and submitted to this Board for its approval.

On motion of Mr. Hall the name of Mrs. Urania Hartzel of Santa Rosa, was placed on the indigent list.

The Board then adjourned to meet on February 6th.

Rumored Electric Railway.

A Santa Rosa dispatch to the Examiner under date of 14th inst., says: "There is a plan on foot to build an electric railway southwest to Petaluma, from Petaluma to Sonoma and from Sonoma, by way of Agua Caliente, Glen Ellen and Los Guilicos, back to Santa Rosa. Eastern capitalists have been here conferring with Colonel J. W. Hartzell, and if the right of way can be secured and some inducements obtained from the people living along the proposed route work on the new line will commence at an early date. The track will be about as heavy as that of the ordinary electric railway and the motive power will be of the most approved kind. If by the time the road is complete anything better than electricity can be procured electricity will not be used, otherwise the cars will be propelled by the electric current. It is proposed to charge only 1 cent per mile for travel. If the right of way can be procured and enough persons found who will buy a 500-mile ticket per month the new line will be in operation before many months. Engineers have been employed to make a survey of the proposed rout, and there is much interest manifested in this part of Sonoma county in the scheme."

You

will never regret sending three 2-cent stamps to pay postage, to A. P. Ordway & Co., Boston, Mass., for a copy of Dr. Kaufmann's great Medical Work; 100 pages, colored illustrations; of great value to every family.

COUNTY ITEMS.

Joe Hoppe of Petaluma won $3000 in the Louisiana lottery last week.

Twelve marriage licenses have been issued in this county since the New Year.

Monday afternoon the little six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Mathrop living near Petaluma was drowned by falling into a duck pond. The little fellow was playing by the pond side when he slipped and fell into the water.

On complaint of John Cnopius, District Attorney Seawell drew up a warrant charging Frank P. Grace, the Santa Rosa grocer, with conducting a lottery at his place of business. Mr. Grace is at present offering to every purchaser of $1 worth of groceries a ticket which entitles the holder to a chance in six prizes aggregating $250. This the complaint alleges is a lottery and a crime against the laws of the State of California. Constable Barnhardt served the warrant Tuesday afternoon, and Mr. Grace was allowed to go on his own recognizance to appear whenever the District Attorney wants him to appear for trial.

City Engineer Smythe has just finished a beautiful map showing the route to be taken by the proposed belt line railroad. The following is the route chosen for the road: It is to commence at Santa Rosa, going south through the new town site of Cotati, then on to Petaluma; from Petaluma the line is intended to run over to Sonoma, passing through El Verano, Agua Caliente, the grounds of the Home for Feeble Minded near Glen Ellen, South Los Guilicos and then back to Santa Rosa.—Democrat.

DYSPEPSIA.

Is that misery experienced when we suddenly become aware that we possess a diabolical arrangement called a stomach. The stomach is the reservoir from which every fibre and tissue must be nourished, and any trouble with it is soon felt throughout the whole system. Among a dozen dyspeptics no two will have the same predominant symptoms. Dyspeptics of active mental power and a bilious temperament are subject to Sick Headache; those, fleshy and phlegmatic have Constipation, while the thin and nervous are abandoned to gloomy forebodings. Some dyspeptics are wonderfully forgetful; others have great irritability of temper.

Whatever form Dyspepsia may take, one thing is certain,

The underlying cause is in the LIVER, and one thing more is equally certain, no one will remain a dyspeptic who will

THE COAL SUPPLY OF THE WORLD.

There Is a Limit Which Some Day, Say 300 Years Hence, Must Be Reached.

The coal pit is not inexhaustible. The bottom may not be in sight, nor its future cleaning up be of any immediate concern, but its eventuality is none the less a predetermined fact. It may or may not be of any appreciable concern when its last contribution to human service is dumped in a coal bin, as in the unseen process of its manufacture and storage it has evidenced a creative design, in which the provision of fuel for man's use was not limited to an exhaustive article. The formation of fuel was not arrested when anthracite and bituminous coal became a mineral fact, nor was the process of formulation stopped when what is known as the creative week had its Saturday night. This may qualify but it does not annul the fact of a limit to future coal supplies.

The world's annual output of coal has, it is estimated, reached a total of 485,000,000 tons, and the countries contributing to that enormous total were as follows, together with the amounts they produced in 1890: Great Britain and Ireland, 128,000,000 tons; America, United States (estimated for 1891), 141,000,000 tons; Germany, 90,000,000 tons; France, 28,000,000 tons; Belgium, 20,000,000 tons; Austria, 9,000,000 tons; Russia, (1888), 6,000,000 tons; others, 9,000,000 tons. During the last twenty years there has been a marked increase in the consumption of coal, which was no doubt commensurate with increased industrial activity. Thus, comparing European countries alone, the average annual output for the period of 1880-90 was upward of 62,000,000 tons greater than during the previous decade, and that rate of interest bade fair to be maintained, so that the world's consumption of coal would soon reach 500,000,000 tons per annum, if it had not already done so.

In an investigation made by a royal commissioner as to the ascertainable sources of coal in Great Britain, it was discovered that not more than 146,773,000,000 tons were available at depths not exceeding 4,000 feet from the surface—a reserve which at the present rate of increase of population and of coal consumption would be practically exhausted in less than 300 years.

The law of limit in this, as in all other mineral products, is of course without exception. It is simply a difference in tonnage. Industrial activity, to which under present conditions the use of coal is indispensable for steam and power purposes, is not only multiplying the demands of consumption, but has a widening area of use, to which the map of the two hemispheres is the only limit.

We cannot add a pound of coal to nature's deposits or build an addition to the planetary cellar, but it is possible to economize a product in the use of which civilization has been ignorantly wasteful.—Age of Steel.

She Preferred His Rival.

A story is told of Lord Melbourne in his character of premier asking the young Queen Victoria whether "there was any individual for whom she felt such a preference that she would wish to have him associated with her in the cares of sovereignity." The queen, a little astonished, asked whether the question was put by Lord Melbourne in his character of a minister of the crown, and he replied that under no other circumstances would he have presumed to address such a question to her majesty. "Then," said the queen, "I must admit that there is one individual for whom I entertain a decided preference, and that individual is the Duke of Wellington." The length of Lord Melbourne's face may be imagined, the duke being of course his great political adversary.—San Francisco Argonaut.

What the Jury Wanted to Know.

During the hearing of an important civil action at the assizes of a country town there was much evidence upon both sides, and this took up several days. The lawyers then had a day and a half to themselves, and his lordship's careful and minute summing up occupied nearly a day. In due course the jurymen retired to consider their verdict, but their absence was so prolonged that at length the judge sent to inquire whether he could in any way facilitate their decision.

Having returned into court he asked the foreman to explain the difficulty, and was staggered by the reply, as the foreman touched his forelock, "If you please, your lordship, we should like to know what all this 'ere case is about!"—London Tit-Bits.

How a Kitten Enjoys Itself.

No small boy enjoys a game of ball better than a kitten, though the kitten, to be sure, invariably plays "handball," and often plays alone. It will amuse itself by the hour, gently batting some object with its paw, sending it now here, now there, keeping it continually in motion, and evidently enjoying every moment of the play.—Exchange.

The Chinese Pigtail.

Everybody knows the Chinese style of dressing the hair—viz., so as to form a long plait, falling over the back. This appendix is produced by shaving the head completely, with the exception of the crown, where the hair is allowed to grow in all its luxuriance. The plait often attains the length of a meter. Day laborers, who find it to hamper them in their work, roll it round their heads; a sailor in a storm uses it to tie on his cap. It not infrequently happens that a schoolmaster will lay about with his pigtail on the head and shoulders of a refractory pupil. To play a trick on his school fellows, a young Chinaman will fasten two or three pigtails together, and contrive to start the unconscious victims off in different directions. From which we see that the Chinese pigtail combines the useful with the agreeable—dulce cum utile.—Matin.

A Fallacy About Cats.

It is pleasing to find that Dr. Stables energetically exposes the vulgar fallacy that "cats ought to find their own food" if they are to be good slayers of vermin. The most determined and adroit mouser we have known was carefully tended and regularly fed. This well-bred and most killing cat disdained to prey on the slain. London [illegible] Review.

"There's another thing I'd like to tell Mrs. Laugtry," said a woman at a reception, "and that is that I can never forgive her for telling a reporter about that one black gown of hers with which she went through a London season at the time when she could afford but one dress. You remember the story everybody does—how she turned down the neck one evening, wore it high the next, and mended and pressed it between times, and how she ends up by saying, 'Never tell me that a woman can't dress well who has a single frock,' etc.

"Well, that wretched little story came out when she first bobbed up into popularity years ago, and it's like the Wandering Jew—no, more like the other fellow, it's still going to and fro upon the earth, seeking whom it may devour. It's always traveling, and it looks in on you at least about every five or six weeks. It pops up in the woman's column, leers at you from the editorial page, and even winks the other eye from the staid, respectable family journal.

"It isn't maddening enough to be badgered and pursued in this way, but your husband must needs make a point of reading that last paragraph out loud with exceeding relish, and then, if you lose your temper, thinks you are calling him a stingy old thing under your breath.

"Now the next paper I see that in I shall stop taking instanter. The editor that doesn't know a ten year old chestnut when he sees it isn't to be relied on for news. I don't believe a woman editor would do such a thing. She'd know that old black silk gown the minute she laid eyes on it."—New York Recorder.

Didn't Care to Go.

A young married woman who takes an intelligent interest in current topics discussed the probabilities of a journey to Mars with some friends at her home the other day. She said, "I presume that some of us will live to see the time when the inhabitants of the earth can journey to Mars." The remark was overheard by Maggie, the new chambermaid, who had been in this country but a few weeks and had scarcely recovered from the effects of the voyage. At her first opportunity to speak with her mistress alone she asked, "Say, mum, and where is that Mars?" The lady carefully explained to the unsophisticated girl a few simple facts about our neighboring planet and facetiously suggested, "You may go there some day, Maggie."

"And do you be after goin?" asked Maggie, with a startled look.

"I may if an opportunity should occur," replied the mistress demurely.

"Thin, mum, I'll be after lookin for a new place, if you plaze. I don't want to go to Mars, 'cause I gits so moighty sick travelin on the water."—New York Times.

My wife was troubled with nervousness about one year before she took Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic, and at that time had very severe attacks of spasm, convulsion, and pains in different parts of the body; when in this state her lower jaws would set violently and not sometimes bite her tongue, breathe heavily, then short, then seemed to stop entirely, get a wild look in her eyes and rolling around, then stop sometimes; it would take two men to hold her in bed, otherwise her body would cramp and be so for two hours. She took but two bottles of the Nerve Tonic, which cured her entirely of all those torments, which myself and wife gladly testify it truly had the desired effect D. S. M'GILLIS.

NAGLE IN COURT.

In the Justice's Court of Santa Rosa Township, Sonoma County, California.

J. W. RAGSDALE, Plaintiff, vs. F. G. NAGLE, Defendant.

The plaintiff for cause of action against the defendant alleges: That on the 16th day of November, 1888, said defendant, F. G. Nagle, received from G. W. Call the sum of one hundred (100) dollars, the property of the Sonoma County Abstract Bureau; that of said money said defendant, Nagle, returned to said Bureau the sum of $20 only, and retained, and ever since has retained, the balance of said $100, to-wit, $80, for his own use, and that no part of said $80 has ever been paid; that said Bureau assigned said claim to plaintiff.

For a further and separate cause of action plaintiff alleges: That defendant is indebted to plaintiff in the sum of $80 for money had and received from G. W. Call, November 16th, 1888, for the use and benefit of the Sonoma County Abstract Bureau, which claim has been assigned to the plaintiff, and that no part of the same has ever been paid.

Wherefore, plaintiff prays for a judgment against defendant for the sum of $80 and costs.

RUTLEDGE & PRESSLEY, Attorneys for Plaintiff.

Dec. 9, 1891, complaint filed, summons issued and served. Dec. 15 default and judgment entered against defendant for $80 and costs. Dec. 16th, Nagle pays judgment.
